Awarded the Sundance Film Festival Grand Jury Prize for Best Documentary (2000), Long Night's Journey Into Day centers on South Africa's Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC), set up by the post-apartheid, democratic government to consider amnesty for crimes committed under apartheid's reign. Filmmakers Deborah Hoffman and Frances Reid, who also worked on the documentaries, The Times of Harvey Milk (Academy Award), Straight From the Heart (Academy Award Nominee), and Common Threads: Stories from the Quilt (Academy Award) will be on hand for discussion after the film. With a special introduction before the film by David Anthony, Provost of Oakes College and advisor to the filmmakers on this project.
