NEOLIBERALISM, FOOD, AND THE POLITICS OF THE POSSIBLE

● Julie Guthman

Tuesday, May 9, 2006

12:00 noon-1:00 PM

Baobab Lounge, Merrill College

Julie Guthman is an Assistant Professor of Community Studies at UC Santa Cruz. Her presentation will explore how contemporary activism around food and agriculture seems to produce neoliberal forms of regulation and spaces of governance at the same time that it challenges the global landscape of neoliberalism. The lecture will draw on several activist initiatives in California to discuss their neoliberal character and transformative potential.
